

TWO DAY 4-H CLUB EXHIBIT OPENS FRIDAY

LIVESTOCK DISPLAYED ON SQUARE WHILE GIRLS' WORK IS IN COURT HOUSE

FUN PLANNED FOR SATURDAY

Greased Pole And Greased Pig Contests Saturday Morning Sure To Provide Hilarity.

Putnam county's 4-H club exhibit opened Friday morning with a big display of livestock in pens on the north and east sides of the square and canned, food preparation, baking, health and clothing exhibits on display in the corridors and assembly room of the court house. A health exhibit was also on display in the court house.

Entries in the 4-H club show were judged Friday morning by Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Royce and Mildred Fraiger of Brazil.

All the girls exhibited their best work in the various clubs in which they are working, while thoroughbred livestock entries by the club boys were groomed and cleaned for the judges and spectators.

Friday was devoted to judging of the various entries and selection of judging teams and a demonstration team. Saturday morning a health contest will be held to select the healthiest boy and girl in this county for the state contest next spring. A greased pole contest and a scramble to catch a greased pig will be other Saturday morning features.

Saturday afternoon a dress revue, band concert and announcement of winners will bring the event to a close.

The excellent display of clothing and food preparations in the court house well merits commendation of the visitors as does the livestock shown by the boys. The displays are well worth while when it is considered that practically no money was expended other than that donated by merchants for premiums.

The entire exhibit was planned and staged by the club members under the direction of county agent E. W. Baker.

The livestock was shown and judged in a ring at the northeast corner of the square Friday morning. Mr. Royce, county agent of Clay county, in judging the entries, made it clear to bystanders why certain animals were superior. Winners of places and premiums awarded them, follow:

VIOLENCE IS REPORTED AT TAYLORVILLE

TWO GUARDS BEATEN BY UNION PICKETS NEAR ILLINOIS MINE

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Aug. 19, (UP)—Violence flared in the Christian coal trouble zone today.

Two mine guards were taken from their automobiles near the Peabody mine at Langleyville, beaten and told to "get the hell away from here as fast as you can."

Unoccupied homes of two miners were destroyed, either by mobs or incendiary fires.

The disorder cropped out in the hitherto-peaceable invasion of the Taylorville coal region by 15,000 miners on "strike" against the new $5 a day basic wage scale. The invaders, constituting probably the largest picket army in Illinois labor history, stood in bands about mines near here that they forced to close today.

W. C. August, superintendent of the Peabody Coal Company's mines in Christian county, reported that the two guards at Langleyville were slugged. He refused to give their names.

The houses destroyed were at Kincaid.

Sheriff Charles Wienecke said he believed one was dynamited and the other set afire. He expressed belief that the mine pickets had nothing to do with their destruction.

Despite the disorder, authorities said they did not believe it was necessary to call for state troops.

The claim that the strike was complete in Christian county was voiced by Lester Douglas, Springfield, chairman of mass meetings of the pickets near here yesterday. He said his host would move on mines working in other coal regions.

Former Banner Carrier Killed

HAROLD VAWTER FATALITY INJURED IN AUTO WRECK NEAR RISING SUN

Harold Vawter, age 19 years, former Daily Banner and Indianapolis News carrier here, died early Friday morning in a Cincinnati hospital of injuries sustained in an auto wreck near Rising Sun. According to reports reaching here, young Vawter was employed by his uncle, who lives in Rising Sun, and had been driving a milk truck. He was on his milk route when the accident occurred.

A sad feature of his death was the fact that his parents were also killed in an auto accident a few years ago. Besides the uncle, a brother, Paul Vawter, a graduate of DePauw university; a sister, Catherine, and a younger brother, survive. The young man had attended DePauw for two terms and had been working the past year in order to secure finances for continuing his education. He was a graduate of the Greencastle high school and news of his untimely death will be a great shock to his many young friends in the city.

Funeral services will be held Monday morning at Rising Sun.

Similar regional gatherings were held at Warsaw and Monticello Thursday while a meeting at Bedford tonight will follow the Greencastle gathering. Regional meetings will be held at Greensburg and Muncie Saturday afternoon and evening.

Among those here for the meeting were R. Earl Peters, chairman, Mrs. A. P. Flynn, Logansport, vice chairman; Paul V. McNutt, candidate for governor, Frederick VanNuy, candidate for United States senator, Amos Wood, treasurer of the state organization, Miss Emma May, Terre Haute, candidate for reporter of the Supreme court, Alden H. Baker, Noblesville, chairman of the Sixth Indiana District, and practically all the candidates for the other state offices.

MRS. McCORMICK SINKING

CHICAGO, Aug. 19 (UP)—The end of the long, dynamic life of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, dowager of America's wealthiest family, was believed by her physicians to be nearing rapidly today.

The daughter of John D. Rockefeller lay in a flower-strewn room at the Drake hotel with the intimate members of her family, reunited for the first time in years, nearby.

Physicians who have fought Mrs. McCormick's critical malady with every aid known to modern science admitted the end could be forestalled but a short time longer.

ONLY EIGHT SUCCESSFUL

(By United Press)

Only eight east-to-west flights have been successful, and only three of these were non-stop. They are:

August 1924—U. S. Army round-the-world fliers, London to New York with stops enroute.

March 1928—Baron von Huenfeld, Kohel and Fitzmaurice, Dublin to Labrador.

June 30—Charles Kingsford-Smith and three companions, Ireland to Newfoundland.

August 1930—Von Gronau and three companions, Germany to New York with stop with stops enroute. Von Gronau has made two similar flights since.

September 1930—Coste and Bellonte, Paris to New York.

August 1931—DO-X, Switzerland to New York via South America.

SCOT AIR ACE SPANS OCEAN

PLANE OF JAMES MOLLISON PASSES OVER ST. JOHN; HEADS FOR N. Y.

PENNFIELD RIDGE, N. B., Aug. 19, (UP)—James A. Mollison, Scottish flier, ended a non-stop flight westward across the Atlantic at this airport at 12:50 p. m. today.

"I came down because I was tired," Mollison told the United Press.

Mollison said he would continue tomorrow to New York, which was his goal on his non-stop flight.

He thought he would not start his return flight eastward for about a week.

Mollison's little Puss Moth plane, in which he made his first westward solo crossing of the Atlantic, still had gas in its tanks when he landed.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Aug. 19, (UP)—A plane definitely identified as that of James A. Mollison passed over here shortly after 11:30 a. m. today.

More than 20 persons read the markings G-ABXY as the silver gray Puss Moth plane swung low. The name "Heart's Content" also could be read.

The plane proceeded speedily toward New York, since it was identified also at New River Beach further along the coast.

St. John is directly west across the Bay of Fundy from Halifax, where Mollison was reported earlier. It was assumed he must have lost his bearings in the fog, since he should have been much further along toward New York, judging from the time he was reported at Halifax.

CURTIS TAKES DRY STAND AT NOTIFICATION

REPUBLICAN VICE PRESIDENT CANDIDATE OPPOSES RETURN OF THE SALOON

UPHOLDS 18TH AMENDMENT

Acceptance Speech at Topeka, Kans., Takes Dampness Out of G. O. P. National Ticket

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19, (UP)—Vice-president Curtis, remaining true to Kansas' prohibition tradition, has wrung some of the dampness out of the Republican national ticket.

In his acceptance speech at Topeka, he renewed his pledge of loyalty to the 18th amendment and opposed its repeal. At the same time he subscribed to the Republican platform declaration recognizing the right of the voters to pass judgment on the issue.

This differs from President Hoover's personal platform announced in his acceptance speech here last week. (The President, while condemning unqualified repeal, said he had reluctantly come to the conclusion that a change was necessary. He favored returning the problem to the states but with federal constitutional restrictions to protect dry states and to prevent return of the saloon.)

After declaring his belief in majority rule, Curtis said: "Personally I am not only in favor of honesty and fearlessly enforcing all our laws, but further I am opposed to the return of the saloon and I am opposed to the repeal of the 18th amendment."

Curtis did not specifically say he would oppose any change in the amendment. Interpretation of a political candidate's remarks is uncertain business, especially on any issue which has aroused the violent feelings that prohibition has. However, the inference drawn by some here today was that if Curtis had agreed with Mr. Hoover's belief that a change in the 18th amendment was necessary, he would have said so.

This would appear to leave Curtis as the dryest of the Four Horsemen who are riding in the presidential sweepstakes this year. Both Democratic candidates are for unqualified repeal. They favor legislative—not constitutional—provisions against the saloon and for protection of dry states.

Whereas the Republican party is for submission of the issue, the Democratic platform recommends unqualified repeal, plus a recommendation that pending repeal congress

10-MILE TR ABOVE EARTH IS DESCRIBED

BELGIAN SCIENTIST TELLS OF EXPERIENCES WHILE FLYING IN UPPER STRATA

OBTAINED VALUABLE DATA

Prof. Picard Confident That His Record Ascent Will Mean Much. Studied Cosmic Rays

DESENZANO, Italy, Aug. 19 (UP)

—The eerie sensation experienced by a man who flew in a "dark sky" during "below zero temperatures while people on earth sweltered" was described today by Professor August Picard after his 10½ mile flight into the stratosphere, a flight which took him higher than any human being has gone. Picard brought his gigantic balloon down near the village of Cavallaro di Monzanbano late Thursday. He told how he and his assistant, Max Cosyns, peered from the portholes of their gleaming white gondola toward an earth they could not recognize. The scientist said the cold was so intense that they feared, for a while, that they would freeze to death within the sealed ball that hung from the giant gas bag.

THE WEATHER

Fair tonight; Saturday generally fair and slightly warmer.

FARMERS PRESS FIGHT FOR HIGHER PRICES; SPREADS TO THREE STATES

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Aug. 19, (UP)—Embattled farmers pressed their embargo of farm produce shipments vigorously today despite the fact prices which they had expected the strike to strengthen were falling. Farmers of three states were cooperating in a blockade of this city which effectively halted all shipments by truck of milk, dairy products, livestock and produce.

The city's only supplies were brought in by rail. Shortages of vegetables and other products were becoming acute. Grocers reported heavy sale of canned goods.

The striking agriculturists were underdressed by the failure of the blockade thus far to raise prices to the hoped-for level. Agricultural specialists said the reason for the fall in quotations was that those opposed to the strike were shipping their cattle and produce to unaffected markets by rail.

The strike, however, was spreading today. Complete cooperation of farmers in contiguous Nebraska and South Dakota had been obtained. From eastern Iowa came reports pickets were taking the roads in the vicinity of Waterloo and Boone.

Violence was being held to a minimum as leaders of the patrols of farmers cautioned their followers against use of force except where absolutely necessary.

Independent farmers who in the early days of the strike defied the blockade and attempted to run the gauntlet of pickets with their trucks had given up attempts at this form of shipment today.

A compromise agreement between milk producers and distributors at a $1.85 a hundred price for milk was held possible today. This disagreement initiated the "milk war" which rapidly developed into the present widespread agricultural strike.

FOURISH
AND TRACK IN 143 B. C.

Mich., (UP)—Liquor ANN Aps and market baskets, flasks, ratone and dating back to all mad have been unearthed by 143 B. Waterman, of the University of Michigan, at Sealeucia in Mesositya.

Waterman, heading a University of Michigan expedition in connection with the Cleveland and Toledo Art Museums, said that undoubtedly the design of the present day liquor flasks was copied from the antique containers.

The rat traps, made entirely of stone, differed materially from current models, Dr. Waterman reports. They were made of hollow stone tube with a large piece of flat stone at one end. Opposite the flat rock the bait was placed and when rodents touched it the stone fell, making them captives.

CLIMBED HIGH PEAK

ESTES PARK, Colo., (UP)—A plucky youth with one leg climbed Long's peak, highest mountain in the Rocky mountain national park, last summer, Robert Collier, Jr., official Collier said the boy, Francis W. Chamberlin, Lincoln, Neb., used a crutch to take the place of the missing leg, in the hazardous climb.

The 18-year old schoolboy pushed straight to the top of the 14,255 foot peak, over a seven and a half mile route by moonlight.

STRIKING WRONG KEY
CAUSES MOST ERRORS

CORVALLIS, Ore., (UP)—What causes typists to make the most errors? Striking the wrong key-letter. Yes, sir, it's a fact, and not half as silly as it sounds.

The other most frequent errors also are operating lapses, or failures, such as omitting letters unintentionally, and omitting words. Poor spelling wasn't even mentioned as a source of errors in a compilation of papers in a recent state typing contest for high school students.

A graduate student in commerce made the compilation at Oregon state college and found the average speed for novice entrants to be 4.89 w.p.m. (words per minute) and for amateurs 52.59 w.p.m. There were 114 entrants from 33 Oregon high schools.

THE NEW $1.50 TAX RATE

What the new maximum $1.50 tax rate may do for Greencastle is just now a lively question. The total tax rate for Greencastle for this year is $3.23 on each $100 valuation, divided as follows: the state gets 29 cents, the county 61 cents, the township 12 cents and for road bonds 28 cents, a total of 40 cents, schools $1.13 and the city 80 cents.

Should the new tax adjustment board maintain the above proportions, and there is no good reason why they should not do so, the various unit proportionate shares of the new maximum rate of $1.50 would be, approximately, state 15 cents, county 27 cents, township 17 cents, schools 55 cents and the city 36 cents on each $100 valuation, or less than one half of the present rates. In addition the county and city would each receive about double the present gasoline money.

For 1932, Greencastle city with the 80 cents rate on a valuation of about $5,000,000, will receive $40,000 and about $2,600 from gasoline tax, a total of $42,600. Now if the above rate of 36 cents should prevail on appraised valuation of say $4,000,000, a decrease of 20 per cent, the city would have about $1,000 in taxes for 1933, to which would be added an estimated sum of $5,000 from the gasoline tax which would make a total of $20,000, to which may be added the cash balance of $15,000 or $20,000, all of which go to make the basis for the 1933 budget.

The question is: Can the city so budget her expenses to meet the apparent receipts? Since merchants, business men, farmers and citizens have been forced to cut their "overhead" from 50 to 60 per cent, it looks as though our taxing officials can do likewise.

Personally, I never favored this law, but since it is a law I believe in giving it a good, fair trial, and an honest effort by each unit to bring its respective budgets within the limits set by law.

Five members of the adjustment board must sanction increases, and as the board is made up of seven members, three of them can stop any increases. If carried out this law means our tax bill will be cut in half.

CHARLES ZEIS.

POCKET VETO
DOOM IS SEEN
FOR 8 BILLS

PARI-MUTUEL BETTING AND PUBLIC UTILITY OWNERSHIP MEASURES IN GROUP

GOVERNOR TAKES VACATION

No Prospect Of Gubernatorial Action On Eight Bills Passed By Legislature.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 19, (UP)—While Governor Harry G. Leslie vacations at his summer home in the Dunes today, eight measures passed by the special session of the legislature seemed doomed to death by the "pocket veto." Two of the bills, the pari-mutuel betting measure and the bill for public ownership of utilities, were among the most controversial of the session.

The "home rule" utilities bill which would strip the public service commission of control of municipally owned utility plants caused more than 100 opponents of the bill to wire the governor urging veto of the measure.

On this bill, as on the others, Leslie said he would give his final word Saturday.

The pari-mutuel bill would legalize pari-mutuel and certificate wagering in Indiana. The state's fee for the operation of the race tracks would be $100 per day.

Opponents of the bill have pointed out that the state would be participating in sponsorship of gambling. Proponents of the measure claim that it would add several millions dollars to the state's income.

Other measures awaiting gubernatorial action are:

The house bill providing for salary reductions of officials in Delaware and Wayne counties.

The house measure calling for a cut in salaries of Anderson city officials.

The senate bill which would enable the governor to borrow funds from the reconstruction finance corporation for poor relief.

The senate bill mandating the Evansville city council to establish a new salary schedule.

A senate bill requiring the city treasurer to collect special assessments instead of the city comptroller.

A senate bill which would abolish the office of city treasurer in New-castle.

All bills left unsigned by the governor by midnight Saturday will automatically be vetoed. None that failed to receive his signature before he left for his vacation are expected to be signed.

Despite the ruling of Attorney General James M. Ogden that the general salary reduction bill for state officials and employees was unconstitutional, Governor Leslie affixed his signature to the measure.

The law will affect all salaries above $1,200 a year and represents an estimated saving of $4,500,000 annually. The reductions worked out in an elaborate formula range from 4 to 25 per cent.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 19, (UP)—

A concerted attempt by officials of northern Indiana cities to persuade Gov. Harry G. Leslie to sign the "home rule" utility bill was planned today, it was announced by Jap Jones, secretary of the Municipal Rights League of Indiana.

The governor was at his summer home in the Indiana Dunes with the bill, which would strip control of municipally owned utilities from the public service commission, scheduled for a "pocket veto."

Jones said delegations from the First and Third congressional districts would call on Leslie with pleas to sign the measure. Mayor Vincent Youkey, Crown Point, and Melville Williams, city attorney of Michigan City, were to lead the delegations, Jones said.

Meanwhile telegrams urging the governor to kill the measure continued to arrive.

NEWCASTLE, Ind., Aug. 19, (UP)—A charge of embezzlement of public funds was faced here today by Charles L. Messick, 59, Newcastle city treasurer.

Messick, a Democrat, was elected in 1929.

There will be an ice cream supper and free entertainment at the church in Fincastle Saturday evening, to which the public is cordially invited.

REPUBLICANS
WITNESSES IN OUSTER CASE

MAYOR WALKER CALLS EIGHT OPPOSITE POLITICAL PARTY LEADERS TO TESTIFY

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 19, (UP)—Mayor James J. Walker carried his fight against ouster charges into the arena of national politics today by a bold move designed to show a Republican plot to win votes in November.

The mayor summoned eight Republican leaders of New York state to testify at his hearing before Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt. The Walker defense will attempt to obtain testimony from those men showing the New York City legislative investigation, out of which the present ouster charges grew, was created to make the mayor and Roosevelt the victims of a national political plot to help President Hoover's re-election campaign.

The eight leaders called were: W. Kinsland Macy, Republican state chairman; state senator Samuel H. Hofstadter, chairman of the investigating committee; state senator Walter W. Westall, White Plains; William L. Ward, White Plains, Westchester county boss; state senator Seabury C. Mastic, Pleasantville, N. Y.; John Knight, now federal judge, former Republican leader of the state senate; Samuel Koenig, Republican leader of New York county, and Fred Bradley, collector of customs at Buffalo and former Republican leader of Erie county.

Roosevelt, who signed the summonses, obviously was aware of the new turn the hearing would take when resumed at noon today, according to the schedule. John J. Curtin, Walker's attorney, had claimed Walker witnesses were not being heard. Roosevelt said he would call anyone Walker wanted.

Walker's strategic move to show a political plot barely overshadowed another sweeping line of action. The mayor's defense obtained a temporary injunction restraining Roosevelt from removing him. Suit was started in the supreme court to prevent the governor from proceeding.

THEY TURN TICK CATCHER FOR SCIENCE

MONTEREY, Cal. (UP)—Add to the list of strange occupations—tick catching.

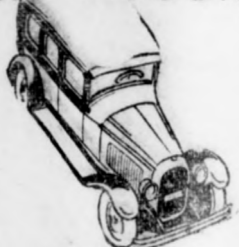

People try to keep out of the blood sucking insects that prey on animals and human beings, but not J. G. Darling, Monterey school science instructor.

Countless others, he preferred a short time ago, to keep his distance from them, but now he chases ticks at every opportunity.

Darling took up his strange occupation recently at the request of the Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever laboratory, Hamilton, Mont., supported by the United States public health service.

The laboratory sent a call to Stanford University for 1,000 ticks which disseminate spotted fever and are used for research work, and the order was relayed to Darling. He has already gathered 400.

CIGARET BAIT CATCHES TROUT

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UP)—Fish like cigarettes and bite eagerly when the white-wrapped rolls of tobacco are used as bait, according to the Pennsylvania fish commission.

Oliver Deibler, fisheries commissioner, circulated the story of the new bait as told him by S. W. Frank, Jeanette, in relating the experiences of his brother, Dr. Claude Frank, Oil City.

As told to Deibler, Dr. Frank discovered the bait qualities of cigarettes accidentally when he threw one into the water.

A large trout, that had disregarded other lures, struck at it savagely.

Frank then baited a hook with half a cigarette. He caught a trout within a short time. Before he finished he had landed three brook trout, ranging in length from 13 to 16 inches.

Fishermen believe the trout were attracted by the white paper wrapping of the cigarettes.

Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, who has been seriously ill in her apartment in a Chicago hotel, suffered a sharp turn for the worse Wednesday night. Her physicians admitted a crisis was at hand and members of her family remained at her bedside.

A Hodge-Podge from Here and There

"Jimmie"

When North Carolina newspaper editors gathered at Linville for their sixtieth convention, officers of the organization were met at the train by a mountain stage coach of Civil war vintage. To complete the effect, the editorial officials were escorted to convention headquarters by a deputy sheriff attired in the style of a half century ago, with a "six gun" hanging from his belt.

After being banned for several years, jazz music and gypsy songs will be allowed in Russia as result of a resolution passed by the Soviet commissariat of education. A year ago, a person advocating such action would probably have been executed for treason. Word also comes from Moscow that the Communist party headed by Joseph Stalin will demand an immediate and rapid expansion of the phonograph industry. From all indications the radio craze will be next. And maybe it won't be a crime to laugh in Russia either.

In a dog and cat hospital down in Houston, Texas, there "lives and breathes" a double-faced kitty. This feline has two perfect sets of eyes, two noses, two mouths, two sets of vocal chords but only one set of ears and lower jaw. Which only leads us to say, at last the "two-faced cat in the flesh."

Prof. August Picard, Belgian scientist, has proved that man can ascend nearly 11 miles above the earth and live. What will it be a hundred years from now? Perhaps powerful planes or rockets will cover regular interplanetary routes, roaring through space at a thousand miles an hour or faster. Perhaps excursion trips with weekend stopovers on Mars will be offered. Who knows?

Gangsters blazed away at each other in a crowded Brooklyn street yesterday and as a result two little girls were wounded, one seriously. Hanging is too good for these hoodlums. Instead of a quick extermination of their lives in the electric chair or the noose, they should be made to suffer just as much or more than their innocent victims. We would almost wager this would cause gunmen to think twice before they opened fire where children were playing.

The U. S. naval aircraft carrier Saratoga was grounded on a sandbar for four hours Thursday a short distance off shore at Sunset Beach, Cal. Running into a fog during target maneuvers, the $35,000,000 ship got caught in the sand. Two navy tugs, one pulling and the other pushing, managed to put the Saratoga afloat once more without damage. The release from the sandbar was witnessed by hundreds from the beach.

INSURANCE COMPANIES ISSUE POLICIES TO AIR TRAVELERS

NEW YORK, (UP)—Twenty-four out of 25 of the largest life insurance companies, writing hundreds of millions of dollars worth of insurance, have altered their attitude toward air travel and their policies now cover passengers traveling on regular transport air lines, the United Air lines reports.

In addition to paying the full face of the premiums in event of an airplane accident, approximately half of the companies said they would, in addition, pay the double indemnity provision.

This general attitude of insurance companies is radically different from regulations of a few years ago, when most life insurance companies would not pay the face value of a policy if death occurred in an airplane accident. Today, the majority of companies make no prohibition against air travel, either in policies already in effect, or which are now being written.

Removal of restrictions against flying by insurance companies is the result of the operating record made by companies flying licensed planes with licensed pilots in regularly scheduled operations.

MALLARDS OUSTED SNAILS

ANAHEIM, Cal. (UP)—When Mr. and Mrs. Herlix Pasano, otherwise known as white snail, became pestiferous and ate up leaves, sapped the juice from the oranges, and ate bark. Mallard ducks were set on them. That was a year ago. Now the snails are all gone.

FARMER SHOTS MAD DOG TO SAVE HIS LIFE

ALLEGANY, N. Y. (UP)—A steady hand and a keen eye saved the life of Guy Cook, farmer, when he was attacked by a pain-maddened dog that he had caught killing his stock. Cook discovered a large police dog in the act of killing a pig on the farm where he was employed. Cook, armed with a rifle, chased the marauder to a nearby stream and shot it as it was swimming across.

The dog, maddened by the pain of its wound, turned around and started toward Cook. The shot, however, had been well placed and the infuriated dog toppled over dead before reaching Cook.

Maybe your personal knowledge of furniture value is superior! During August we are staging an unusual event. We're asking people to compare pieces of home furnishings on display in our Store with any similar ones elsewhere for the purpose of letting you actually SEE FOR YOURSELF what we have discovered . . . that every-day prices in our Store represent values as good and often better than those now being offered in August Furniture Sales everywhere. To make it doubly interesting for you we are giving each week during this month a . . . Beautiful Occasional Chair FREE

After a careful investigation I purchased a Speed Queen Washer from you for these reasons:

1. It has a full size tub with double wall construction.

you won't be asked to buy . . .

Our first interest in staging this educational event is to demonstrate to people who are thinking of buying furniture what true value really is in home furnishings. We want you to see for yourself that surface appearances alone do not guarantee you life-long satisfaction . . . it is quality construction throughout. What Will Be Worn and Why Seen and Explained at New York Fashion Show as Designers Display Their Latest Creations.

The all-important (to milady) question of what the new hat styles was answered at the display of Fall and Winter chapeaux at the show of the Retail Millinery Association in New York. Here are three of the many charming models shown there. While the turban remains most popular, even these have been "dressed up." On the left is a charming black plush creation, tipped off by the jaunty little "wings" fluttering above the wearer's left eye. The model is the center is of French design executed in black velvet with unusual draping in the front which permits a glimpse of gold hair ornament. The large bow comes into its own in the model on the right, which is also of black velvet. And if these do not suit you fancy there are new berets and sailors

2000 HEAR BOY PASTOR

NETLETON, Ark., (UP)—Twelve year old Rev. D. C. Applegate, Jr.,

Cradle to Kleigs

Although still too young for kindergarten and barely old enough to find his way on the "set" alone, this tiny star is one of the outstanding personalities of Hollywood. He is George Robert Phillips McFarland, aged 3 1/2, known to film fans as "Spanky." He has been an actor since he was 18 months old and is therefore something of a veteran.

has won a reputation as the youngest preacher in Arkansas and one of the youngest in the south, and already is taking his place in the pulpit.

Converted last September, the boy, known as the "Kid Pastor," has lost little time in preaching the gospel.

"I felt like I was being called by the Lord," the youth stated. "I felt it coming on me for a long time and I believe I would have died if I hadn't been permitted to preach."

On one of his appearances before a congregation, he spoke before 3,000 persons. The church atmosphere has been around him since he was born. His father, Rev. D. C. Applegate, Sr., has been preaching for years.

He isn't a "sissy." He is an honest-to-goodness boy and romps with the fellows, or goes out for a swim in the old swimming hole. He is in the eighth grade.

SYNOPSIS

At 11:30 on New Year's Eve, Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt arrives at the exclusive Mayfair Club in response to a mysterious summons from District Attorney Merle Dougherty. The latter informs Colt he believes Lola Carewe, known as "The Night-Club Lady", widow of Gaylord Gifford, the cotton millionaire is the "higher-up" responsible for numerous jewel robberies perpetrated recently which baffled the police. Though her husband died practically penniless, Lola lives in luxury. She arrives at the Mayfair accompanied by Vincent Rowland, an attorney. At Lola's urgent request, Colt joins her party. She voices the fear that she will not leave Mayfair alive.

CHAPTER FOUR

"WHAT Miss Carewe says is not an exaggeration," declared old Rowland, with smooth authority. "I consider that she is in urgent need of police advice and protection."

Out of the pause that followed, came Colt's voice, clear, masculine and precise:

"Why do you think you will be killed?"

"I have been warned of what will happen to me!"

"Personally?"

"The warning was clear enough—for me!"

Colt looked at her, for the first time showing the slightest interest.

"A practical joke?" he suggested. She looked at him searchingly.

"Mr. Colt, would you consider it a practical joke, if you had a dog that you had loved for years, and someone killed him?"

Colt's cigarette burned neglected between his fingers.

"That was done to my dog a week ago," Lola rushed on.

Into the gaze of Thatcher Colt had leaped a gleam of resentment—the chief was not a dog-lover, but any wanton killing stirred his resentment.

"That sounds—far-fetched!" he protested. "Where was your dog killed—in your apartment?"

"On the terrace, outside my bedroom window."

"And at what hour?"

"Late at night, while we were all asleep—my maid, my mother, and Christine Quires, a girl friend who is stopping with me."

"How was he killed?" asked Colt. "I don't know. We just found him dead!"

ter in the mail box in the lobby of my apartment house, as I came downstairs with Mr. Rowland. You see, Mr. Colt, we had not intended coming to Mayfair tonight. We were bound for the Lion's Paw, the new club out near Rockville Center. But as soon as we read this note, I felt I must get to you about it. We telephoned your office, then your home—your butler told me you would be here. Vincent, show Mr. Colt that letter."

The aged lawyer gravely produced a plain white envelope, from which the Commissioner drew a single sheet of ruled note paper. The message was written in cheap brownish ink, the awkward block letters apparently formed with painful care, and read:

"We have already killed the only two creatures that you ever had any real love for. Now we come to you. You are going to die before three o'clock. No human being can save you."

There was no signature. Colt carefully folded the paper and passed it to me.

"If someone meant to take your life, why warn you about it?" he objected, frowning. "The act of sending such a warning should be a psychological clue to the writer's identity."

The waiter brought the dishes of their order. Lola Carewe toyed with her fork, then lifted it, about to taste a curry of lamb and rice. Colt's voice, "casual, indifferent, stayed her:

"I would not eat that if I really felt—"

"Of course," she murmured. "What a silly fool I would be to touch anything now."

"Ah, my dear Colt, then you do take this threat seriously," exclaimed Vincent Rowland with deep satisfaction.

"Miss Carewe's life may be in danger," granted Colt, tamping out his cigarette. "At least, I think she should be well-guarded tonight. I shall be glad to put some of our picked men at her disposal."

A little cry came from Lola Carewe and a grunt of disappointment from Rowland. Dougherty was staring meaningfully at the Commissioner.

"Miss Carewe had hoped for your personal handling of this case," he said to the elderly attorney. "And so, in fact, did I. It would be a great favor to me—"

"I feel that only you can save my life, Mr. Colt," shuddered Lola, her white fingers quivering as they toyed with her ruby. "No one else—I am really terrified—"

"Thatcher," cried Dougherty, "we can't pass this up. It's natural—you understand."

Colt nodded slowly.

"Very well," he yielded. "I shall be glad to supervise your protection by the Police Department, if you think you need that. But only on my own terms."

"Anything?" cried Lola.

"And what are your terms?" from Vincent Rowland.

"That you, Miss Carewe, place yourself and your household entirely in my hands. We must go to your home at once—and you must answer all my questions."

"Willingly," Lola Carewe agreed, with a docile, child-like gaze.

"These must be no deviation of any kind from police orders!" emphasized Colt.

"You shall be the boss," she promised, laughing with an effort at lightness.

Poor Lola! If she had only kept that promise!

Five minutes later I was talking to Headquarters from a telephone booth under the staircase outside the Crystal Room. At the other end of the wire was Inspector Flynn. I was transmitting Colt's orders.

"The chief wants detectives and one woman operative sent at once to the apartment house at Number 700 East Fifty-eighth Street. Tell them to meet us in the hallway on the twenty-second floor. Fix it with the apartment house manager. And the chief says to step on it."

"O and also K," growled Inspector Flynn as he hung up.

Emerging from the telephone booth, I found Detective H. H. Harris, of the Fifth Avenue Squad, waiting for us. Harris was assigned to Mayfair every Saturday night. He was a first-grade detective, promoted as are all the New York detectives from the uniformed ranks—a dark-haired man with a soulful expression, whose popularity with the opposite sex gained the Police Department many valuable tips. Colt had directed Harris to assist me.

"Everything set," Harris told me. "The Commissioner's car is now in front of the Forty-sixth Street entrance. Three motorcycle patrolmen are standing by. Would you mind telling me what all this is about?"

I pretended not to hear him as I reclaimed hat, stick, and overcoat and led the way up the red-carpeted stairs. Through the glass of the revolving doors, I saw the chief's car, and the round, moon-like face of the chauffeur, Neil McMahon, impassive as a Buddha above the steering wheel. The air was filled with whirling snowflakes, and the wind made a harsh sound. I was suddenly overpowered by a sense of unreality. This New Year's Eve adventure seemed remote, bizarre, incredible. The three patrolmen were huddled together like blue night-birds in the storm. The shields on their breasts gleamed brightly. One of them coughed. These men, Colt's car, the storm—all were real—but Lola Carewe's death-threat . . .

When our party left the Ritz Carlton Hotel that night, Lola was under strict and adequate police guard. Quickly she entered the Commissioner's car, and sat in the middle of the rear seat. Colt rode at her left, and I at her right. Dougherty and Rowland occupied the folding seats in front of us, and Detective Harris sat beside the chauffeur in front. At a word from Colt, we started off at break-neck speed through the slithering ice of the winter streets, followed by three chugging motorcycles.

"The glass of these windows is bullet-proof," Dougherty explained. For no apparent reason, Vincent Rowland laughed softly.

"Am I to take it that we are now impregnable from attack?" he queried.

The District Attorney did not reply. The car stopped before the marquee of an apartment house, a thin, tall tower on the brink of the East River. Except for the three uniformed motorcycle officers, the sidewalk seemed deserted. Shivering in the dismal cold, we hurried into the lobby. With an unnatural sense of apprehension, I looked around me. So definite and so defiant had been the threat against this woman's life and Thatcher Colt had taken it so seriously, that I was prepared to see an assassin in every dark corner.
